

About Reboot

Reboot is a social impact firm dedicated to inclusive development and accountable governance. We help governments, foundations, and international organizations achieve their missions.

MISSION

Toward a 21st century social contract.

The foundation of governing legitimacy and collective prosperity, a social contract is inclusive by definition. Yet too often, outdated institutions of governance exclude too many people from the political processes, economic opportunities, and services that can make tangible improvements in their lives.

The possibilities for inclusive development and accountable governance are growing alongside our ability as citizens to access information, organize, and input. So too are our expectations. But our governing institutions rarely keep pace with these changes. Our social contract is due for renegotiation.

Reboot is working at the forefront of these transitions. We aspire to see relationships between institutions and individuals defined by more inclusive policies, accountable programs, and effective services. We believe these are the tenets on which a 21st century social contract can be built. From supporting good governance in Nigeria to human development in Nicaragua to civic innovation in the United States and beyond, we are dedicated to realizing them.
